GRAVATÁ
CHAIR 2.0

Designer Guilherme Wentz revisits one of his most iconic products and elevates its design. The Gravatá 2.0 Chair features new curves, a backrest carved from solid wood, and a natural cane thread seat fixed to the structure, which is now thicker and reinforced.
The Gravatá series summarizes our vision regarding the functional and visual simplicity of furniture. Through its soft and contemporary shapes, the chair uses the transparency of the natural cane thread, reminiscent of the freshness and lightness of a coastal lifestyle, while the Tauari wood draws its structure of timeless lines and curves.

NOTE

The Gravatá Chair 2.0 is made from solid tauari wood, known for its strength, stability, and the natural variations that bring the material to life. Its structure is composed of wood segments that are carefully selected and joined using high-precision industrial processes, creating a solid, clean piece with well-resolved junctions.

Available in stained or natural finishes, each chair reflects the authenticity of the raw material. In the natural version, tauari appears in its purest state, revealing nuances of tone, grain, and density that make every chair a unique piece.

The joints between segments are part of the chair's design and highlight natural color variations along the structure. These differences are not flaws, but an essential part of the natural, living, and exclusive character of solid wood.

These variations may occur even within the same batch or between products of the same model, representing the genuine behavior of wood. With use and exposure to light over time, it is expected that the tone will subtly change as part of the material's natural aging and maturation process.
